

Could you be VWT's next Intern?

VWT is looking for a recent graduate (BSc or MSc) to make a joint application with VWT for funding to join our Conservation Team. The role will provide you with the opportunity to work directly with VWT's Head of Conservation and Conservation Team, helping to develop species-based conservation plans for its key programmes.

You will learn how to apply the Conservation Standards framework, developing your skills in conservation planning and monitoring, and enabling VWT to make a real impact for its priority species in the UK.

The successful candidate will have graduated within the last three years from a UK-based university with either a first or a 2.1 — and will be living in the UK. You will have had less than one year's paid experience in the sector and be able to demonstrate voluntary experience.

Once selected by VWT, the candidate will work with the Head of Conservation on a joint application to the PTES Conservation Internship Award — please see PTES Conservation Internship Award Guidelines for information on eligibility and application guidance.

Please note that this role is conditional on the award of a successful grant application, which will be co-produced by the candidate and VWT.

To apply, please send a copy of your CV and a cover letter to samantha.bremner-harrison@vwt.org.uk by 27 August 2026.
